Malta Customs Cost Access Switch 200G

Overview

Tariff The measures are duty rates, taxes (VAT and excise tax), and non-tariff restrictions which are assigned to nomenclature codes. The measures are alwa.

Key Takeaways

Importing an Access Switch 200G into Malta involves customs duty, 18% VAT, and potential brokerage or licensing fees, calculated based on the CIF value of the shipment.

Customs Duty and VAT

Malta, as an EU member, applies customs duties based on the EU Combined Nomenclature (CN) and TARIC codes. The duty rate depends on the classification of the Access Switch 200G under the CN system, which typically falls under telecommunications or networking equipment. If imported from a non-EU country, the duty is calculated on the CIF value (Cost + Insurance + Freight) of the shipment.

In addition to customs duty, Value Added Tax (VAT) at 18% is applied on the total of the CIF value plus customs duty. For example, if the CIF value is €10,000 and the customs duty is 2%, the VAT is calculated on €10,200, resulting in €1,836 VAT.

Import Licensing and Authorisation

Certain electronic or telecommunications equipment may require an import license or authorization from the Trade Services and Projects Directorate, Commerce Department. Applicants must submit requests via the Malta Import/Export Web Portal using an e-ID login. Approval is issued after consultation with relevant authorities, and the license must be presented to customs upon import.

Additional Costs

Customs brokerage fees: If using a courier or freight forwarder, fees for filing the Single Administrative Document (SAD) may apply. Handling or storage fees: Depending on the port or airport of entry. Temporary suspensions or preferential rates: Some goods may qualify for preferential duty rates under EU agreements, but this depends on the country of origin and product classification.

Steps to Calculate Total Import Cost

Determine the CN/TARIC code for the Access Switch 200G. Calculate customs duty using the CIF value and applicable duty rate.

Add VA

T at 18% on the sum of CIF + customs duty. Include any brokerage, licensing, or handling fees. By following these steps, importers can estimate the total cost of bringing an Access Switch 200G into Malta accurately.

For precise duty rates, consult the EU TARIC database or use Malta's online import duty calculators.
