Key Takeaways

Selling optical cables and fibers involves understanding the market, identifying buyers, and leveraging B2B platforms or surplus buyers to reach customers effectively.

Understand the Market and Product Types

Before selling, it's crucial to know the types of fiber optic cables in demand, such as single-mode or multimode (OM1, OM2, OM3), and whether customers need simplex or duplex cables. Consider whether you are selling new, used, or surplus cables, as this affects your target audience and pricing. Understanding the applications—like data centers, high-speed internet infrastructure, or telecom upgrades—helps tailor your sales approach.

Identify Potential Buyers
