Ltd.: Supplies hot-dip galvanized ladder-type cable trays and support arms, widely used in construction, automotive, and industrial sectors. Local distributors: Many Ecuadorian electrical supply companies provide standard support arms and fittings, often with bulk discounts for large projects.

Considerations

Material quality: Hot-dip galvanized steel is preferred for long-term durability. Load requirements: Ensure the support arm matches the weight of the cable tray and cables. Installation: Some suppliers may include installation hardware or offer pre-assembled kits.

Bulk orders: Prices per unit can decrease significantly for large quantities. For precise pricing, it is recommended to contact local suppliers directly to request a quote based on your project specifications, as prices fluctuate with steel market rates and galvanization processes.
