Key Takeaways

Steel hoops or clamps for cable tray covers are typically sold as accessory kits with covers, and prices vary based on material, finish, and supplier.

Overview of Steel Hoops and Clamps

Steel hoops, clamps, or fixing clips are used to secure cable tray covers in place, ensuring protection for cables from dust, water, and mechanical damage. They are commonly included with cable tray covers or sold separately as accessory kits. The materials and finishes affect durability, corrosion resistance, and suitability for different environments: Mild steel pre-galvanised (PG): Standard option for indoor or less corrosive environments.

Mild steel hot-dip galvanised (HDG): Provides enhanced corrosion resistance, suitable for outdoor or industrial settings. Stainless steel grade 1. 4404 (316L): High corrosion resistance, ideal for harsh or chemical-prone environments.

Typical Packaging and Inclusions

Most cable tray covers come with 5–6 fixing clamps or fasteners per cover. Hoops or clamps are designed to fit specific cover types, such as closed covers (CC) or ventilated covers (CV). Some suppliers offer extra clamps for additional security or larger installations.

Pricing Considerations

While exact prices are not listed in the sources, the following factors influence cost: Material and finish: Stainless steel clamps are more expensive than pre-galvanised or hot-dip galvanised options. Quantity per pack: Kits with more clamps or larger covers increase the total cost. Supplier and brand: Industry-leading brands like Metsec, Legrand, or Schneider Electric may charge a premium for quality and certification.

Compatibility: Specialized hoops for certain tray depths or widths may cost more.

Recommendation for Procurement

Contact suppliers such as RS Components, McMaster-Carr, CEF, or Metsec for current pricing and bulk order options. Specify the tray type, cover type, and material finish to ensure compatibility and accurate quotes. Consider ordering extra clamps to allow for maintenance or future expansion.

In summary, steel hoops or clamps for cable tray covers are sold as part of accessory kits, and their price depends on material, finish, and supplier. For precise pricing, contacting suppliers directly with your project specifications is recommended.
