Countertop Price Per Square Foot: 2026 Cost GuideCountertop price per square foot by material, from laminate to quartz and granite. See installed cost rang.

Key Takeaways

Countertop costs typically range from $1 to $190 per square foot, depending on material, quality, and installation.

Average Costs

The total cost of installing new countertops varies widely based on material and kitchen size. For a standard 40–55 square-foot kitchen, homeowners generally spend $2,200 to $4,500, with an average around $3,300 for professional installation. Labor alone can add $15–$30 per square foot, depending on complexity and local rates.

Material-

Specific Price Ranges

Laminate: $8–$50 per sq. ft., budget-friendly and low maintenance. Tile: $30–$60 per sq. ft., customizable but requires grout maintenance.

Wood/

Butcher Block: $55–$200 per sq. ft., warm and natural, requires periodic sealing. Solid Surface (e.g., Corian): $60–$130 per sq. ft., seamless and durable. Concrete: $70–$150 per sq. ft., customizable with color and texture options.

Stainless Steel: $80–$225 per sq. ft., heat-resistant and modern. Granite: $50–$140 per sq. ft., durable and elegant. Marble: $25–$190 per sq. ft., luxurious but softer and more prone to staining.

Quartz: $38–$157 per sq. ft., highly durable and low maintenance.

Factors Affecting Cost

Countertop Size: Larger kitchens require more material, increasing total cost. Material Quality: Premium grades of granite, marble, or quartz can significantly raise prices. Installation Complexity: Custom edges, cutouts for sinks, faucets, or cooktops increase labor costs.

Removal of Old Countertops: Hauling away existing counters adds to the total project cost. Local Labor Rates: Prices vary by region and contractor availability.

Summary

For a typical kitchen, expect to pay $27–$200+ per square foot including materials and professional installation, with laminate and tile on the lower end and natural stone, quartz, or stainless steel on the higher end.
