They are ISO 9001 certified and cater to oil & gas, industrial facilities, and power plants. Ruwais Steel Ruwais Steel offers a wide range of cable trays, including powder-coated, stainless steel, ladder, trunking, and perforated options. Their manufacturing adheres to ISO 9001 standards, ensuring high tensile strength, dimensional accuracy, and durability for industrial and construction projects.

West Port Cable Tray With over five years of experience, West Port Cable Tray supplies light, medium, and heavy-duty cable trays, ladders, and wire mesh trays. They emphasize modular, adaptable designs suitable for commercial and industrial environments, providing excellent ventilation and protection for electrical wiring.

PS

I (Power Solution International) PSI manufactures cable trays in compliance with BS EN 61537 and NEMA VE-1 standards. They offer carbon steel, aluminum, and stainless steel trays with hot-dip galvanization for corrosion protection, along with a full range of factory-made fittings for complex installations across the Middle East.

Choosing the Best Manufacturer

When selecting a manufacturer, consider: Industry experience and reputation: BMCI and Al-Babtain have decades of proven performance. Product range and customization: Ruwais Steel and West Port offer versatile solutions for various applications. Certifications and quality standards: ISO 9001 certification and compliance with international standards ensure reliability.

Material and environmental suitability: Hot-dip galvanized, stainless steel, and powder-coated options provide durability in harsh Middle Eastern climates. For large-scale industrial projects, BMCI and Al-Babtain are often preferred for their extensive experience and high-quality engineering, while Ruwais Steel and Emerald Steel are excellent for cost-effective, durable solutions.

PS

I and West Port are ideal for projects requiring modular, adaptable systems with international standard compliance.
